Widespread Sorrow Over with a view to their eligibility. Congressman Dingley's Death.

vise His Recent Statement.

By Associated Press to The Independent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.-Profound sorrow was manifest today in every walk of public life, caused by the announcement that Congressman Nelson Dingley, of Maine, had passed away. At his late home the Hamilton hotel, were many which he was held, and messages of conofficers, senators, supreme justices and and Wilson were among the earliest cal- quisition of Porto Rico. iers, and following them came the Rt. Rev. Dr. Satterlee, Senators Hale. Burrows and Fairbanks, and Representatives Henderson, Cannon and Dockery-in fact, every man in Congress with whom the dead congressman had associated during his long and notable service. Callers left their cands, as the family was too deeply bowed with grief to receive

At the House of Representatives the death of Dingley came as a personal whom he had long been associated. The desk he occupied, in the center of the Republican side of the chamber is heavily draped, while the top is covered with a profusion of floral offerings. As the members came on the floor they gathered in groups and spoke not only of their personal loss, but also of the loss to the country, and to the House of Representatives, particularly at a time when his genius and talents were of incalculable service. There was but one voice from both sides of the chamber in the expression of grief

Late tonight no further details of the Dingley funeral arrangements have been announced. A message was received | from Lewiston, Me, begging for arrangements for a public funeral service there, saying committees have prepared to have the body lie in state there, and delegations from the whole district will attend the service. Letters of condolence were received today from members of the cabinet. Sir Louis Davies, of the Canadian joint high commission. General Joseph Wheeler, and others.

It has been practically concluded not to make an appointment of a commissioner on the joint Canadian commission to fill the place vacated by the death of Representative Dingley. With the Hon. J. W. Foster lying very ill, and unable to discharge any of the duties of his membership, the American commissioners are having much trouble.

The navy department today took the initial steps for the prosecution of its plans for the formation of a naval transport service between the United States and the Philippines, and according to the schedule promulgated the Solace will sail from New York for Manila in January and July, and the Buttalo from San Francisco to the same point in April and October. The schedule gives a threemonthly service, which allows the vessels to refit between trips, and they will carry stores for the naval forces in the Philippines. Admiral Dewey will not only erect storehouses for the goods, but he will have the Celtic and Culgoa as refrigerator ships for the storage of fresh meats and provisions.

It is believed he is devoting himself to a revision of the statement which created such a sensation. IN WALL STREET

Saturday's Session Most Remakable in Years.

The Week's Business Surpasses that of Any Like Period in the History of Wall Street.

(By Associated Press to The Independent.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The transactions on the stock exchange today were the largest for a two-hour session in many years. Had the same volume continued for the usual five hours' trading it would bereavement to the many membrs with have been almost two millions. There were seven hundred shares dealing, and an average rise of from one to two points in stocks which figured most ex tensively, and a diversion of interest from the Pacific into higher priced stocks, the Grangers being gainers. The excitement was tremendous, with an unusually large attendance of brokers for a short session, as a constant influx of out side orders made it necessary for large dealers to transfer considerable of their business to smaller brokers, at the regular commission between members. Stocks opened buoyant and active, and highpriced records passed unnoticed in the confusion. Brokers fought to execute orders, and there were simultaneous transactions in many shares widely apart. London early received large pur chasing orders from this side, and quota tions from that side showed a genera advance. The rapidity of the rise brought immense blocks on realizing sales, but the sustained buying power o the market absorbed all offerings, and after a temporary reaction prices again mounted upward. The market halted temperarily, pending the publication o the weekly bank statement, but on its appearance, showing as it did an increase of $4,732,800 in surplus reserve, and $3. 042,200 in loan account, bullish enthus iasm was resumed. Commission houses were the largest buyers. Gould and Vanderbilt stocks were comparatively neglected, except Southern Pacific The greatest activity was in Grangers Atchison, Reading and Southern, pre ferred. Federal Steel and Brooklyn Rap id Transit. While there were some shares receding from the extraordinary high opening, the market regained mos of the decline, and closed with some ir regularities, but generally strong and active, with important gains in many cases. The week's business has been the most remarkable in the history of Wall street. The transactions for the week in stocks reached the enormous figures of 5.812.000, making the average for full days' sessions of over a million

Britain, and will Publish a Book on the Subjebt.

London, Jan. 11 -- When the American correspondents said that Senator Foraker in his recent speech spoke only for himself when he suggested that the was a distinct sigh of relief here. It was assumed that because the senator was from the President's own state he was speaking for the President, and the declaration not only succeeded in giving British officialdom an unpleasant shock, but fell like a dash of cold wateron the Eritish desire for an Anglo-American understanding. They began to questian what profit this friendship would be if America did not propose to back up Great Britain's policy in the far East by retaining the most important base of operations in event of a war over China.

The incident illustrated how deeply the late war with Spain left the United States entangled in the world's policies, for one of the foremost arguments advanced against Senator Foraker's suggestions was that the United States owed it to the world not to disturb the balance of power, and not to furnish a possible subject for war by throwing the Philippines into the field to be scrambled for by colonizing nations. Leading editorial writers fell to proclaiming most strenuously that America's duty to the world, as well as to the Filippinos, should constrain her to establish civilization, and [By Associated Press to The Independent] throughout the British press, in club rooms and in the streets, only one voice was to be heard on the subject. The principle of the consent of the governed, port for Cuba. all contended, does not apply to a people who are incapable of forming a rational opinion upon which to pase their consent, and that the United States stood in the place of a parent to the Filippinos, and must regretfully chastise rebellious children for their own good.

Many drew a parallel from the so-called coercion of the South into the Union. The solemn Spectator flippantly inquires whether Senator Hoar does not chastise his children when they are naughty, and imagines a Louisiana congressman talk ing about consent after the military occupation, whereby the state, subsequent to its purchase from Napoleon, had been reduced to order. The Spectator than asks if Americans are going to give up California and hand Texas back to the Mexicans, and says it believes that great races, when the hour and opportunity comes to expand, are greatly regardless of arguments.

Ex-Congressman Bourke Cochran was a passenger on the Paris, which sailed [By Associated Press to The Independent.] for New York from Southampton today. He may re-enter politics on the issue of imperialism. The former congressman said he felt strongly on the subject, adding that this was a stage in the actions of history at which no citizen who had convictions was justified in holding aloof from the conflict. He did not think an inteaview the proper medium for declaring himself, and he would take other means to do so in the near future.

John W. Bookwalter, of Ohio, whose views on Russia were published here, on December 22, is returning to the United Cannot Fight Sharkey Before the States with the intention of writing a book describing his three months' travels in Siberia. Incidentally the work will be a plea for an American alliance with Russia instead of Great Britain. He says his observations in that country strengthened his pro Russian views, and adds that the interests of the United States and England are antagonistic. too radical a movement, so far as Great Britain was concerned, and the plan; had not captured the hearts of the people, but was merely a political device with two aims: (1) To divert America's attention from conflicting interests in her own hemisphere, and (2) to make the United States England's catapult in her development of the East. She thinks she will be able to extort better terms from Russia. What America wants more by co-operating with Russia than by antagonizing her. The latter already and can give the United States what combined nations of the world could not whip Russia, any more than they could the United States. The most they could do would be to bombard a few coast towns. While Russia's railroads could pour handreds of thousands of soldiers into China, all the United States Working With Us in the and England could send would be but a handful in comparison.

A RISE OF FORTY-FIVE FEET.

Nearly all the Tributaries of the Ohio are Rising.

[By Associated Press to The Independent.]

CINCINNATI, Jan. 14.-The rain of the last few days, which terminated with thunder storms and a heavy down pour last night, will likely make a forty-five feet rise here. Data from the Ohio river water shed received tonight show great variableness in the severity of the rain fall. At Oil City the rise was comparatively light, and now falling, indicating but little danger from the Allegheny. The Tennessee river shows failure to rise at all. Every other tributary of the Ohio is rising more or less. The chief rise in the upper river seems to be in the Monongahela and the Kanawhas. A rapid swell at Marietta shows that the Muskingum is pouring out a flood. At Parkersburg the Little Kanawha made a quick rise. The Big Sandy, Kentucky and Cumberland, whose sources are within a stones throw of each other are all bank full. The two Mramas and the Wabash are making copions contributions to the water of the Ohio.

THAT NAVARRE ROAD.

To the Editor of THE INDEPENDENT:

The people of Massillon feel that they have been treated in bad faith in regard to the completion of the electric road to Navarre. They feel sore that its franchise should have been wrested from them by the astute Mr. Lynch, and are somewhat surprised and indignant that the claim for damages is not pushed by the city solicitor. It is stated on good authority that the Canton Massillen Electric Rathway Company sunk $6,000 last year on the Massillon city lines. They might have known as much before ever a single rail had been laid. The spectacle of cars with all the expensive appliances for business running empty from hour to hour and from day to day through the streets, is discreditable to the town. If the company would take up the rails running northward from Main street and westward from Erie street, the length of these two tracks being not much short of three miles, and join them to the present track reaching in the direction of Navarre for a mile and a half, the track would reach within a mile of that village. Then the $3,000 forfeit saved to the company would run the track into Navarre. This would be a paying business from the start, and the company, instead of sinking $6,000 yearly, would put $6,000 in its pocket.

MASSILLON IN THE FIFTIES

Merchants Knew How to Advertise Their Wares and Local News Filled Two Columns Every Thursday.

"Don't bet on the election until after next Thursday, for if you do you might lose thereby." This sage observation made by the "Massillon News" in 1852 shows the independent stand of the journal as to politics, its character in this respect being further indicated by the publication of the three tickets to be Free Democratic, at the head of its editorial column. "Fellow citizens," continues the News, "next Tuesday you will be called upon to elect county and state officers. We feel like becoming eloquent just here and turning off some flery sentences that would arouse the feelings of every patriot and stir up the luke warm to redoubled vigilence. But on considerthis infliction." All of which goes to show that the newspapers of fortyseven years ago were not so radically different from those of the present day and all of which was discovered in looking over some old files of ancient jour-

The Massillon News was an eight page weekly, issued every Thursday, and showing besides a choice display of selected reading matter, poetry and prose, one or two columns of local news, a column of editorial essays and a great many WAS ALONE AT THE TIME. advertisements. Even in those days Massillon merchants realized the necessity of properly presenting and enumerating their wares, most of them adopting a familiar, confidential form of addressing the public. "Look out for the cars when the bell rings," cries one enterprising citizen from a two inch space. "---- desires to have it particularly understood that he is still able to be around, and that owing to the late increase of opposition in the tailoring line, he has resolved to redouble his efforts and spare no pains to please all Shop at the same old stand." In the next column "----returned from the East, now informs his friends and the public generally that beneath the shade of those tall poplar trees he has now for public exhibition a stock of jewelry which has few equals. Wishing to return thanks for the generous confidence reposed in him heretofore, he merely suggests that his motto still is, 'I strive to please.' "

In the year 1852 that important in vention, the sewing machine, first came into use. An article in the News describes the Wilson patent thus: "This beautiful and ingenious machine surpasses all others of its kind in simplicity and cheapness, the lever and screw being the only powers used, and its cost not exceedhalf long in a minute, and much better river and canal, just north of the city. than can be done by hand. A sumptuous dinner was spread "for all the soldiers who fought for freedom in the late war," flags were hung out and the exercises of the day were interspersed with "vocal and instrumental music, songs, speeches, toasts," and the evening closed with "a good display of fireworks, bonfires and illuminations." John Benjamin Stanton, orator, Lieutenant A J. Ricks read the Declaration of Independence: the Rev. H. H. Morrell read the emancipation proclamation, and A. C. "Mr. Dangler has put up a handsome lamppost in front of his dwelling, which makes a good appearance these moonlight nights." And again: "The Repository says that our Canton neighbors have a pound, a place in which to imprison all stray pigs, cattle, geese and other stock running at large. William Kossack Falls Into a Vat of Boiling Water.

Though Suffering Terrible Agony he Drags Himself to the Telephone and Calls for Dr. Gardner-He is a Married Man.

William Kossack, watchman at the works of the Corns Iron & Steel Company, fell into a vat filled with down, was literally cooked, and his left side from the hip down. There is scarcely a possibility of his recovery.

Kossack was alone at the time. Despite his terrible suffering he retained his presence of mind and drew himself out of the tank and to the office near by. where there is a telephone. So great was his agony when he reached this place that he raved like a maniac, calling so wildly and loudly that the operator at the exchange for several minutes was unable to understand him. Finally "'young Dr. Gardner" came over the wire distinctly, and the operator took in the whole situation. A few minutes later Dr. D. S. Gardner was on his vay to the mill.

The doctor found Kossack lying on the floor in a stupor. He had been overcome by the pain. Everything possible ing twenty dollars. The three prisoners who escaped with Henry Myers from the hospital of the Stark county workhouse were: John Patterson, received from Lisbon for petit larceny: Edward Sherwood, re-Wm. McKinney, received from New Philadelphia for larceny. The men were confined in the hospital ward on the second floor. It is protected by iron bars at the windows and an iron door. The culprits removed about twenty bricks from the wall, which is sixteen inches thic. Thereby making an opening about two feet square. After removing the bricks a sheet was tied to the neating pipes, and it was easy for the prisoners to drop to the ground beow. Their escape was not discovered until today, when Henry Moonshower appeared as the workhouse and stated that McKinney had called at his house and asked for a change of clothing. The escape was effected by means of a broom needle and chisel, which had evidently been secreted about their clothing. The them to attempt any great work without men were all employed in the broom factory. No trace of them has yet been

Mr. Fluhartheard of the accident be gleaned from the fact that a promi-immediately upon arriving this mornnent dry goods firm had just received ing, and he at once went to the under a full line of ladies' and misses' hoop taking rooms of N. H. Willaman, to which place the body had been removed. He said that the boy had been an inmate of a children's home for a number of years, leaving the institution one year ago to work for William Myers, near Applecreek. Since then he had been employed by various others.

Death occurred at 6:45 o'clock Wednesday evening. He never regained consciousness. Drs. Hardy and Pfouts worked with him for hours, hoping that he might be brought to his senses long enough for them to learn his name, but in vain. At times he seemed to be conscious of his pain, writhing in apparent agony, but he did not utter one intelligible word. His moans were heartrend-

While Mays was still alive and at the esidence of Claude Purrington, in West Main street, some one remarked that he bore a remarkable resemblance to Chas. Kurtz, of Canal Fulton. Addison Kurtz, of that place, wassent for. "Why I don't know," said he, looking at the body, "it does seem like my brother, and yet it loesn't." Then the telephone bell rang. Kurtz was wanted. The man at the other end was the brother he half believed dead, who wanted to assure him that it was not he. Mr. Kuriz went back to Fulton.

The body was claimed Thursday afternoon by the mother of the deceased, Mrs. Eichenberger, of North Lawrence, who has married a second time. Coroner McQuate viewed the body, and gave a verdict of accidental death. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been

ACTIVITY OF THE PEOPLE.

They do not Appreciate the Seriousness of the Blow Which has Befallen Them-The Loss of Exclusive Markets.

Marseilles, Dec. 23.—Rolling into Barcelona a few weeks ago, through suburbs of smokestacks, it required no violent stretch of imagination to feel that we were not really in Spain, but entering Chicago. The illusion was intensified on that it is a respectable old place, founded, arriving at the busy city where the industrial life of the kingdom centers, observing its activity, and hearing its people talk. The actual and directly tributary population of one million now was scarcely half of that fifteen years ago, and until the city's fortunes declined with those of the nation at the beginning of had its local privileges, and that one by down the stack at the Canton-Massillon the colonial troubles the general trend one their once-vaunted rights have been Electric Railway Company's power was all upward. Even now, while death swept away, and their, province effaced house in this city. Traffic on the city and desolation are so evident elsewhere, active. The streets are thronged, fine carriages bowl along the ramblas, as the Catalonia, or in the Basque provinces. principal boulevards are called, the that other region where local traditions to be seen nightly at the opera house, policies. some forty theatres invite the public to enter, and the cafes are fairly full. All thus has several causes. In the first place, the French element is predominant, and wherever that is true you have light and gayety under any and all circumstances. In the second place, Barcelona has a bank account created by years of prosperity. The seriousness of the blow that has been dealt to the city's manufacturing interests is nevertheless felt, although not yet popularly appreciated at its full value. Factories are idle, wages have been reduced, other factories are working on half time-these are all signs of the times, but the men who carry the dinner pails attribute these facts to the political troubles, which will pass, while the heads of the large houses see in them only the beginnings of other events even more disastrous. Said one such person to me: "The people do not realize what has discovered it anew.

happened, and as long as they have a peseta in their pockets it will make no difference anyway. There is something in the air and soil that forbids any long continuing public expression of calamity. Our business men know perfectly well what has occurred—that our manufactures have received a vital blow, and the rest will understand it in good time. This is the workshop for Spain. You will find nothing more important at Madrid than the gas works and electric light plant, and while the people of the capital have been playing politics we have been building up a city. To the country at large the colonies meant very little except national glory, offices for the politicians and graves for our soldiers. But to us of Barcelona they meant exclusive markets, and they built up industry after industry and fortune after fortune. We set out to make and sell every yard of cloth our colonies needed, and the only way our British competitors could get a foothold was by coming here and building branch establishments and employing Spanish labor. Many of them, such as the Coats thread people, have done that. In thirty years Barcelona has grown from a city of 270,000 people to one of over half a million, and if we include the province we could drop the balf. Then came the blighting insurrections, then the war which stopped our over-sea trade altogether, and we have lost our possessions and have the fine prospect of holding on to such trade as we can retain in even competition with the great manufacturing nations. We can't compete and we don't expect to do so. All that I see ahead for our people is to get back to the half-cultivated soil."

While in Barcelona a British subject related an incident illustrating how seriously the Spaniard takes his religion. The state religion is, of course, Catholic, which is recognized as the only true church. Consequently, while the Prottant bodies are not forbidden to work in their own way, they must not do so in a manner which would in any remote manner confuse the two organizations in the erect a church building. Under the law, or rather the administration of the law, the church must not in its architectural lines indicate its character, lest it should be mistaken for a Catholic church. Therefore, in order to keep within the law and preserve the peace of the city, the new English church at Barcelona will resemble an apartment house. The rectors of the church of England are usuaily men of cultivation and intelligence. and the curate of Barcelona is not an exception to the rule, yet I was told by many respects so new that you can wander for miles along unpaved streets, lined by handsome modern apartment houses on both sides, and it is a curious instance of the pertinacity with which national tendencies hold their own, to enter one of these apartment houses and ring the bell. Almost instantly you are made aware that in the middle of the door is a little slot or peep hole, the slide of which can only be operated from withthe bell is the removal of this slide. A curious eye peers through the slot and decides after a protracted stare whether you are a proper person or not, and if the conclusion is favorable the door opens and you discharge your mission.

Except Barcelona and Madrid, every other city seems to be hoary with age. Madrid has no ancient quarter, and unless you traced it up in Barcelona it would never intrude itself upon you. For all so they now claim, two hundred and thirty-seven years before Christ. It has always been a commercial capital, and a focus of democracy and revolutions. Each of the golden collars of the order is returned to the court of Spain on the death of its wearer, whereupon it is soon again conferred upon another illustrious European. Miss Lulu Stevens, of Gasport, Niagara Co., N. Y., had been a very healthy girl until about a year ago, when she grew weak and pale. She lost her appetite, was as tired in the morning as on retiring, and lost flesh until she became so emaciated that her friends hardly knew her. The doctors declared the disease anæmia, and gave her up to die. A physician who was visiting in Gasport prevailed upon her to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. She did so, and was benefited at once. She is now well and strong—the very picture of health. —Buffalo (N. Y.) Courier.

An Experience of Mr. Peter Smith That Others Might Well Wish to be Their Own.

Morrow's Kid-ne-pids, the scientific ly gaining favor in Massillon. No medi- jerning. sleeplessness and general debility that from persons who have used Kid-ne-olds We give you the experience of Mr. Peter Smith, who is employed in Hess, Snyuer & Co's works and resides at 235 North street, who recommends Morrow's Kidne-oids as follows:

"After suffering four or five years off 10 and experimenting with many kinds of 00 kidney remedies and others said to be good for rheumatism and backache. without being benefited. I had about made up my mind that nothing would 25 reach the seat of my troubles and that I no would be compelled to suffer on, but the use of Morrow's Kid-ne-oids for a few days has changed my mind. If I had known of this remedy sooner it would have saved a great deal of unnecessary suffering, for Kid-ne-oids have relieved me entirely of kidney backache and the rheumatism pains in my joints is hardly worth speaking of. I have used one package only but I am going to purchase a box of Kid-ne-oids at Seaman's drug store and continue to use them, for I know they are just what I need. I have told my fellow workmen about Morrow's Kid-ne-oids and will recommend them to all who are afflicted with backache and theumatism.

Morrow's Kid-ne-oids are Yellow Tablets (not pills) and are put up in wooden boxes, which contain enough for about two weeks' treatment and sell at fifty cents a box at F. E. Seaman's drug store A descriptive booklet will be mailed upon request by John Morrow & Co., chem ists, Springfield, Ohio.
